

Our past, your present, the future of the National Presbyterian Museum

Since opening in 2002, tours of the exhibits have intrigued and informed visitors about the significant impact of The Presbyterian Church in Canada and how Presbyterian men, women and children have confronted, challenged and changed Canadian and global culture with the Good News of Jesus Christ.

The Museum offers:

- chapel with 1840s furnishings
- largest public collection of Communion tokens in Canada
- 19th century minister's library
- historic Communion vessels
- hand-crafted items collected by international missionaries
- 1925 Church Union ballot box and ballots
- pictorial church plates
- cornerstone laying trowels
- photographs and glass slides
- guided tours

The 139th General Assembly of The Presbyterian Church in Canada approved the recommendation that the Museum Advisory Committee request each congregation to consider including a $50 donation to the Museum as part of their 2014 budget.

Congregational and individual donations can be sent to the Museum's mailing address:
